Czech refugee Joe found a new life in post-war Rasen

A MAN who fled Nazi controlled Czechoslovakia and found his way to Market Rasen following the Second World War has written a new book. Reinhold Joesef Willisch, better known as Joe, arrived in the town in 1946 and has lived here ever since.

Born in the village of Partchendorf in 1924, he was displaced during the war and after working under duress fortifying the German's position in France, came to Willingham Hall.

Now he has written a book, Steps in the Dark, documenting his experiences.

He said: "I had not planned to write the book, I wanted to forget everything, but my children told me: 'we know you as a father, but not as a man'.

"People that have read it tell me they couldn't put it down, but I can hardly remember what I wrote now."

Having settled in Market Rasen, Mr Willisch married his wife Elizabeth and had three daughters, Linda, Sandra and Jane.

The book took Mr Willisch several years to write and was compiled using notes he had made during and after his stay at Willingham Hall and historical fact.

But he said it was difficult to write about his life during and before the war as he had to work entirely from memory.

He added: "I did not set out to gain financially, I wanted to write it for my family and it just got out of hand."

To buy a copy call Mr Willisch on 01673 843614.

S, MORE SPORT, MORE LOCAL, MORE VALUE

U3A explore the world of Victorian poverty

THEIR August meeting saw West Wolds U3A taken back to 1834, when the new Poor Law established the Poor Law Unions of local parishes to set up workhouses for the poorest in society.

National Trust volunteer Colin Deeley gave a detailed and interesting talk illustrated by pictures of the workhouse in Southwell, which has been restored by the National Trust back to its original interior. Families were bathed on admission, had their clothes and any possessions taken from them, and then were separated, living apart and given work according to their ability, men breaking stones into dust, women doing laundry, while children were taught under the strict tutelage of the overseeing schoolmaster.

He and his wife, the matron, had to instil discipline over the inmates under the jurisdiction of the guardians who administered the workhouse.

The workhouse at Southwell is open on Wednesdays to Sundays from noon to 5pm.

The next meeting of West Wolds U3A will be on Thursday September 10, 10am for 10.30am, when the talk will be A Day in the Life of a Victorian Prison Warder. New members are always welcome.

For more information call 01673 842584.
